HONOR THE MEMORY OF WASHINGTON IN SCHOOL PROGRAMS

Students at Jefferson Avenue Building Present Stories, Songs, Plays

M A N Y PARTICIPATE

Unfold Accounts of Life of The Father of His Country

George Washington, the Father of his country, was honored by Bristol school pupils yesterday in story, song and playlet.

The presentations on the programs went back to the childhood, the youth and manhood of the first president of the United States, as the students unfolded accounts of the great general. In some of the programs Washington's memory shared honors with that of Lincoln, the two great leaders being honored simultaneously, rather than on two separate occasions.

At Jefferson avenue school, grades four, five and six gave the following numbers:

Singing, America the Beautiful; recitation, Flag Song, Henry Cordisco; recitation, The Father of Our Country, Alan White; dialogue, Breaking the Colt, John Fiorelli, Salvatore Accardi; recitation, Washington's Christmas Party, Gene Bandini; reading, Washington As a Boy, Fred Constantino; play, I Am An American, Elizabeth Burtonwood, Evelyn Bechter, Robert Stone, Rita Casmiri, Dorothy Stackhouse, Nicholas Centofanti, Anita Embessi, Frank Morone.

Graduates From Aviation School

Joseph Francis Kooze, son of John A. Kooze, Elkins avenue, Bristol, has just graduated from the Roosevelt Aviation School, Roosevelt Field, Mineola, Long Island, N. Y. This school is one of the seven civilian aviation schools selected by the government to instruct Army Air Corps enlisted personnel in airplane mechanics.

Private Kooze was one of the 25 students selected from the Army Air Corps Base at Mitchel Field, Long Island, N. Y., last August to pursue this course which lasted six months.

He enlisted in the United States Army Air Corps at the recruiting station in Camden, N. J., July 7, 1939, and stated his reason for enlistment was to avail himself to the many opportunities offered enlisted men in learning a trade in aviation.

Private Kooze has been assigned to the 5th Bombardment Squadron, 9th Bombardment Group, Mitchel Field, Long Island, New York, where he will perform the duties of aerial engineer on one of the huge twin-motored bombers.

Private Kooze is attending the Diesel Engineering School at Huntington, Long Island, N. Y.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

The Vice-Presidency

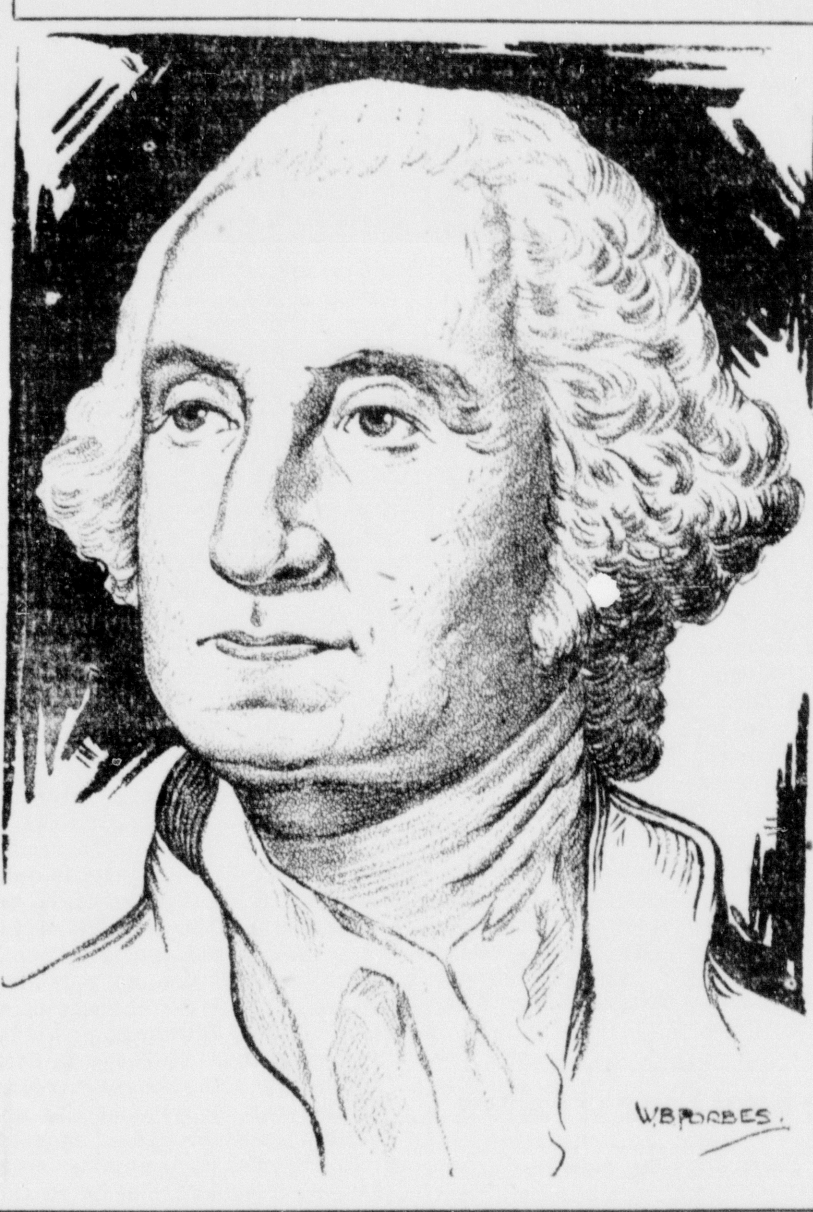

Washington, Feb. 21. AT this stage of the proceedings, friends of the various aspirants for the Presidency in both political parties assert with great positiveness that their particular favorite, under no circumstances, will accept the Vice-Presidency.

Presidential nomination. With him, they say, it is first place or nothing.

HE would rather run for Governor of New York, or stay in the Senate or go back to private life, than take the second place. Most of which is bunk and generally understood as such in political circles. Obviously, there is no other for boys, in its broad applications there is decidedly no age limitations.

ONE reason is that they hardly can afford to refuse something that has not yet been offered. Another is that such a preconvention statement about the Vice-Presidency easily might react unfavorably on the Presidency can take.

Haila Stoddard Is Now Convalescing After Operation

SPRINGTOWN, Pa., Feb. 22—Miss Haila Stoddard, actress wife of Jack Kirkland, who was taken ill while rehearsing for a new show, "The Burning Deck," which was to open tonight in Columbus, Ohio, is convalescing following an operation in St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem.

Miss Stoddard, who was taken ill three days ago while in New York, was studying for her role in the new production. She is expected to be in the institution for about ten days. Her condition is reported "fair" at her Springtown home, according to a servant. The nature of the operation was not disclosed.

Miss Stoddard is not expected to resume her role in the new show when it reaches New York City, some other plans having been made. She scored personal triumphs in the Bucks County Playhouse Summer Theatre productions last Summer when she appeared in the initial play, "Springtime For Henry," with Edward Everett Horton and Julie Haydon, also in "They Knew What They Wanted."

Miss Stoddard became a star in the theatre for her excellent portrayal of the daughter in "Yes, My Darling Daughter" several seasons ago. She met her husband, Jack Kirkland, while playing in the West Coast company of his production, "Tobacco Road," which is now in its seventh year on Broadway.

The Kirklands, who are popular in the theatrical colony which includes playwrights Fred Finkelhoffe and John Saunders, Jr., who authored "Brother Rat," were married following an "airplane courtship" from Montreal, Canada, after first obtaining their marriage license in Doylestown. Miss Stoddard was playing in Montreal at the time and the honeymoon was by air to their farm near here.

GIRLS ARE TAUGHT REAL HOME MAKING

Seventeen Senior Girls At Washington Street School Get Instructions

HAVE A MODEL KITCHEN

This is one of a series of articles dealing with the activities in the schools throughout this area.

That the home is the center of interest for the 17 senior girls, located by Miss Elizabeth Forsyth's room at Washington street school, is a fact which no one could discount when they glimpse the classroom. For at one end is a model kitchen, complete with a large electric stove, electric refrigerator, kitchen cabinet, metal closet and fine sink.

And in this model kitchen the girls, under instruction of Miss Forsyth, learn how to best care for the needs of the "inner man," and many an appetizing meal, and many a cake and cookie for special occasion, have been concocted there. Each Wednesday and Friday is "cooking day," and to each girl is assigned a certain phase of work. For those who are not participating in the preparation of food on that particular occasion, there are other forms of house-work, such as washing of clothing, dusting, and other tasks.

The activities are correlated at present with all phases of home-making. Simple vegetables and meat dishes are blended and cooked, cakes mixed, cookies cut, balanced meals outlined, and all recipes are neatly written on separate sheets of paper, which are bound in booklets with attractive designs colored on the cover. Thus spelling, writing, art, as well as arithmetic through food measurements are taught. But the task goes beyond this, for the girls work out budgets for the home on a percentage basis, with so much allotted for food, for clothing, fuel, rent, etc. Each trip to the nearby stores to purchase items is made by the students, after they have checked the supplies, and looked over the recipes to be carried out each day. They check the items, also the bills, count their change, and so in every way become careful "housekeepers."

BUSINESS SURVEY SHOWS IMPROVED STATUS IN PA.

Spring Pick-Up is Expected To Start From Higher Levels Than 1939

INDICATE GOOD YEAR

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22—The State Department of Commerce today reported that surveys show business conditions in Pennsylvania are better than a year ago, and the Spring pick-up is expected to start from higher levels than was the case in 1939.

Information received by the Department indicates 1939 was Pennsylvania's best year since 1930 and averaged more than 19 per cent. above 1938 for most lines of business. Reports for this year show 1940 has begun with business more active than in the first quarter of 1939.

As specific instances, Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown cited:

Retail sales in January were higher in Pennsylvania than in the same month of last year, the increase averaging more than 6 per cent. in a number of the reporting cities.

Steel production, Pennsylvania's leading industry, in January was 58 per cent. higher than in January, 1939. Ingot production last month exceeded 5,000,000 tons for the fourth consecutive month, and the ninth month in the history of the industry.

Eastern Pennsylvania wholesale dry goods houses reported sales for January were 15.5 per cent. ahead of the same month last year. Advance sales for Spring were more than double those of the corresponding period of last year.

Factory wage payments in Pennsylvania at the end of 1939 averaged $6,000,000 a week higher than last May and almost $9,000,000 a week higher than at the end of the 1937-38 recession.

Total production of bituminous coal in Pennsylvania in 1939 was approximately 90,000,000 tons, or 18 per cent. more than in 1938.

Production of by-product coke increased 35 per cent. from 1938 to 1939. Gas and fuel oil production in the State was 7 per cent. higher last year than in 1938.

Charles L. Miller, New Britain, retired.

Alternate Jurors
Horace M. Frankenthal, Springtown, manufacturer.
John T. Maher, Newtown, auctioneer.

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 22—Four women and eight men were selected yesterday for the jury that will try Adam Greenberg, 55, well known Buckingham Township farmer, charged with arson in connection with the burning of the Black Cat Inn on the Lackawanna Trail near Pipersville on the early morning of October 6, 1938.

It took three hours and 30 minutes to select the jury and two alternates. Forty-seven jurors were called and examined before the panel and alternates had been selected.

Greenberg is on trial in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Bucks county in Judge Calvin S. Boyer's court. All of the first day of the trial was taken up with the selection of a jury. There is no court today owing to Washington's Birthday observance but the case will resume trial tomorrow morning and probably continue through to Monday.

The defendant Greenberg was convicted of the same offense at the September term of court last year but a new trial was granted him by Judge Boyer after motions had been filed by his attorneys. Greenberg is out on bail.

Greenberg is the owner of the Black Cat Inn which has not been restored since the damaging fire in 1938. Just before adjournment yesterday, Greenberg's lawyers, Wilbur VanDine, Doylestown, Theodore R. Gardner and David Getz, Allentown, objected to a motion of District Attorney Edward G. Biester that the jurors be allowed to view the premises of the Black Cat Inn before the start of testimony in the case.

Judge Boyer sustained the objection of defense counsel on the grounds that the fire happened too long ago for any practical viewing of the premises.

Judge Boyer also warned jurors serving on the case not to discuss the matter with anyone until after the trial is over, and if anyone insists on talking with them during the trial, to get their names and report them to the Court.

This was the first time in the history of the Bucks county court that alternate jurors have been drawn in case of illness of a member of the panel.

The Black Cat Inn was operated as a combination roadside stand, dance hall and beer taproom. At the first trial of the Greenberg case last September, it was testified by Pennsylvania Motor Police and special fire investigators that the Black Cat Inn was "well-soaked with gasoline rags" before the fire and that a lot of rags and cans containing gasoline were found at the time of the fire, in various parts of the building.

Jurors who were challenged by either the defense or Commonwealth either peremptorily or for cause included the following:

THE MAN AMERICANS HONOR

It is probably safe to say that no nation in the world today has had a son so revered and respected as the United States has in George Washington. His appeal is more tangible than that of England's mythical kings, superior to that of Wellington in the hearts of his countrymen, above that of Napoleon and other would-be and actual conquerors.

Washington was the architect of a new world. More than any other man he stands as a symbol of freedom and selflessness. Not Bolivar, not San Martin, made the magnificent contribution to the life of his nation, his hemisphere and to all the nations of his time that Washington made.

But those who would today transport George Washington to the modern scene will, if they are honest, encounter considerable difficulty. How would he feel about our politics? About our economic policies? About our social principles and arrangements?

He would probably feel lonely and unadjusted and out of the picture. There is evidence that he must have experienced these moods during the first half of his life in the middle 1700's. What would be his attitude toward prevailing trends to totalitarianism? He could have had a crown after the Revolution. He rejected the idea:

"... which to me seems big with the greatest mischiefs that can befall my country."

On Washington's Birthday many public speakers are accustomed to profess that they are following in the footsteps of the man who was first in peace, first in war, first in the hearts of his countrymen. Such speeches must seem slightly ridiculous when they are pinned beside the essential majesty of Washington the soldier and Washington the statesman. They seem even more far-fetched when applied to Washington the man. Washington was a great man a century and a half ago. He would be a great man today or in any time or era. He is wholly worthy of the reverence and undying gratitude which Americans give to him. His place is secure in American hearts and American history. It is with sincere humility—and with a little sadness, too, perhaps—that it must be said, Americans shall not look upon his like again.

TRANSVAAL GOLD HERE

Not necessarily are the routes taken by migrating gold known. The yellow metal, if need be, can take a trail and leave no trace.

Something of the kind may be occurring in connection with an unusual amount of gold currently coming to the United States from Canada. While Canada is a bountiful producer, more yellow metal has been drifting over the border into this country than the mining output warrants.

Where did that gold originate? None of the newspapers know but several of them are good at guessing and figuring out that the bullion is from the Transvaal, South Africa, that it is loaded on ships there for the comparatively safe Pacific Ocean trip to Vancouver, British Columbia, and thence east.

This kind of shipment was made during the first world war and there is no particular reason why it should not be done again.

The Great Game of Politics

ably on a candidate's Presidential aspirations. It would give his opponents opportunity to assert that he has an exaggerated idea of his own importance. They could also say that he thought more of his own personal fortunes than he did either of the party or the country.

THE fact is that after its candidate for President has been nominated, should the Republican convention, for example, unanimously turn to the outstanding unsuccessful aspirant and nominate him for the second place he would be put in a position where, regardless of his wishes, it would be very difficult to decline. To refuse such a call would make him seem both a selfish man and a bad loser. Not many men will resist that kind of party pressure—particularly if applied as an appeal to patriotism. Undoubtedly the unsuccessful aspirant, before the convention meets, many times will have declared his conviction that the success of his party is vital to the national health. In face of that, an unsuccessful Presidential candidate hardly can turn down, without a better reason than that he prefers another place, a demand of such character made upon him. In other words, even the most reluctant can be drafted.

AND then there is another reason. It, of course, is unpleasant to talk of the chances of an elected President dying before his term is out. Nevertheless, that thought is in the minds of the politicians in every Presidential campaign—and naturally—as much as our history shows that the chances of a Vice-President succeeding to the Presidency is at least one in five. Particularly, this thought intrudes in this year—because of the extraordinary record of a hundred years in which, beginning with 1849, no President elected in the twentieth year thereafter has lived out his term of terms.

THERE was William Henry Harrison, elected in 1840 and died in 1841; Abraham Lincoln, elected in 1860, assassinated in 1865; James A. Garfield, elected in 1880, assassinated in 1881; William McKinley, elected in 1896, assassinated in 1901; Warren G. Harding, elected in 1920, died 1923. Now, this is 1940, which would seem to be the fatal year to get elected. Of course, there is nothing in that. No sensible man will regard the mortality among the Presidents elected in these years as anything but coincidences without significance. However, there is among politicians in both parties a great deal of conversation on the subject and certainly these dates are widely discussed, and with avid interest and concern. The politicians take them into their calculations. They wouldn't be politicians if they didn't.

Right Way, Easy Way To Carve Ham

Knowledge of A Few Simple Rules Will Avoid That Dinner Table "Tragedy"

The scene of this domestic "tragedy" is the family dining room. The entire family and four guests are seated at the dinner table.

All is quiet. All eyes are on the host, who is seated behind a beautiful whole baked ham, obviously the pride and joy of mother's culinary ability. Mother has that look of "Oh, it's so pretty, isn't it a shame it has to be cut, and I do hope Henry won't make a scene of it."

Henry hopes for the best. Henry has that look of, "Well, if it has to be done and I have to do it, I might as well start. I wonder if it's all right to stand up, and where in the world am I supposed to start, and I wish they'd quit looking at me."

Perhaps you're all too familiar with a setting such as this which reaches its climax when there turns out to be more people than there are pieces of meat. Or perhaps it reaches its climax that evening after the guests are gone, when Mrs. says to Mr. and then Mr. puts in his word—and well, you know how it goes.

Carving, as so many seemingly intricate arts, becomes comparatively simple when you are familiar with a few basic rules which make the custom the pleasure it should be.

Hostess Does Her Part
The host isn't the only one who has an important role in a carving scene. A little forethought on the part of the hostess will make the actual carving much easier.

In setting the table she should be sure that the carver has room for his platter and for his elbow. The platter itself should be large enough to accommodate slices of the meat when cut, or an additional warm platter should be furnished. Glasses and dishes should be placed in a safety zone with respect to the carver.

An over-generous garnish becomes a decided hazard to the man with the knife. Adequate and attractive garnishes can be arranged with a thought to the work that has to be done by the host.

Proper Cooking Important

Cooking the meat properly, neither overdone nor underdone, is the most important preparation for carving, and if a large roast is allowed to stand about 30 minutes, it can be carved more easily. Since servings cool quickly, don't forget to have the plates and platters heated.

This is just a little hint to the hostess but it may be appreciated more than anything else. When you come to the natural halt in the conversation just as the carver is to demonstrate his skill or lack of it, start talking about the weather or Chinese flying fish. Anything to divert the guests' attention from the scene of activity.

And Host Does His Part

Now a few "cutting remarks" to the host. Stand up or sit down when you carve, as you prefer. Be certain your knife is as sharp as it can be. Avoid changing the angle of the blade when slicing a slice, for neat, uniform slices. A little investigation concerning the bones will help you choose your course.

Plan the servings before carving so that each person will receive his part of the choice portion. The carver must be the judge of how much to serve. When to prepare second helpings and other incidental problems which might arise. First, foremost, last and always, however, he must remember that at all times he must "cut across the grain," except, and again it is the exception which proves the rule, in the case of steaks.

To Carve a Ham

Since our star family is having ham for dinner this evening, let's see just how the host should proceed with actual carving. The ham is on the platter with the fat or decorated side up and the shank end is to the carver's right—at least it should be. The carver inserts the fork and cuts several slices parallel to the length of the ham on the nearest side. He then turns the ham so that it rests on the surface just cut, holds it firmly with the fork and cuts a small wedge from the shank end. This wedge is removed, making it much easier to cut the succeeding slices and to release them from the bone. Keeping the fork in place to steady the ham, the host cuts thin slices down to the leg bone and releases these slices by cutting along the bone at right angles to those cut.

For more servings the ham can be turned back to its original position and sliced at right angles to the bone.

If you can get your cues from hints such as these, the carving scene from "The Family Dinner" will surely have a traditional happy ending.

SAUSAGES FOR HEARTY SUPPER

Little link sausages, temptingly browned and nicely served, are just the right meat to serve for a hearty supper. They are so satisfying. Brown them first, then serve them on a casserole of baked beans, if you wish. Or cook lima beans in water until tender, season them with salt and pepper and a little grated onion, place them in a casserole dish, put browned pork sausage on top and heat through in a moderate oven. The sausages add a delicious flavor you are sure to enjoy.

"JUST CAKE AND COFFEE"

"Just cake and coffee" wins fame for the hostess when she serves this feathery light cake with mocha tiling and seven-minute icing.

SHORTENING IS IMPORTANT FACTOR FOR GOOD CAKES

There seems to be three kinds of cake—the kind that mother used to make, the kind we see in pictures, and the kind we bake ourselves.

Is that right, or are you the person who makes them as good or better than mother's with each one a picture in itself? Here's much power to you if you are, and in the meantime may be we can make some suggestions to still the homemaker's lament. "Oh, dear, I just can't understand what's wrong. I had had luck with my cake again. I'm sure I followed the recipe exactly, and Mary's was so good too."

Shortening Is Important
Of course each individual case may have its own peculiar circumstances but often a failure can be traced to some fundamental fault.

Inez S. Willson, home economist, thinks that your first consideration should be the shortening which you are using. It is the tendering effect of fat which is of major importance in giving us cake with admirable texture, and the texture is the most important quality in classifying a cake as good or bad.

Plasticity is one of the first requisites for a shortening to be used in cake baking. Plasticity means its "workability" and pliable qualities. Lard has an advantage over many other fats in that it has a wide plastic range, remaining pliable over a range of temperatures. Miss Willson reports that recent studies on the use of lard in cake making as well as actual experience of homemakers have demonstrated that it can be used as the shortening in any type of cake—a dainty, delicately flavored white cake to a highly flavored spice creation. You'll like the light, feathery texture and delicate crumb.

Moist to Last Bite
Cakes made with lard have superior keeping qualities, remaining moist until the very last bite.

Miss Willson approves a modified method for mixing cakes made with lard. In the modified method the procedure is: (1) Cream the lard and sugar with a little milk (the addition of milk makes the creaming easier), reserving one-fourth of the sugar to beat with the egg whites; (2) stir egg yolks into rest of the milk (this varies from the usual practice of adding the eggs to the creamed sugar and lard); (3) beat egg whites until stiff and dry and add remaining one-fourth of sugar and beat until the sugar just disappears; (4) sift the salt, flour and baking powder together three times; (5) add part of flour first, then milk and flour alternately in usual way; (6) fold in egg whites to which sugar has been added carefully.

You'll find lard is your most economical shortening, for it is 100 per cent fat, having greater shortening power than any other plastic fat. This favorite white cake recipe is one that you will want to try.

Favorite White Cake

1 cup lard
2 1/4 cups sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3 3/4 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/3 cups water
2 teaspoons vanilla
7 egg whites
Reserve one-half cup sugar to beat with the egg whites. Cream lard, remainder of sugar and salt. Sift flour and baking powder together three times and add alternately with the water and vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in the one-half cup of sugar. Carefully fold into batter. Bake in three 9-inch layer pans in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 25 or 30 minutes. Put together with Seven-Minute Icing.

Seven-Minute Icing

2 1/4 cups sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons white corn syrup
7 1/2 tablespoons water
3 egg whites
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
Combine all ingredients except vanilla in top of double boiler. Mix well. Cook over boiling water for three minutes. Remove from fire but leave over hot water and beat with rotary beater seven minutes or until consistency to spread. Add vanilla and blend well.

Mocha Cream Filling

5 tablespoons flour
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk, scalded
1/2 cup strong black coffee
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
Combine flour, sugar and salt. Add a small amount of milk, stirring well. When mixed add rest of milk and coffee and cook in double boiler until thickened (about 10 minutes). Pour small amount of mixture over eggs stirring constantly. Return to double boiler. Cook two minutes longer, then cool and add vanilla. Spread between the layers of the cake, then put the icing over the outside.

ALLSINGTON

In honor of Miss Alice Headley's birthday anniversary, a dinner was given for her at Fischer's Tea Room, on Sunday.

Pork Sausage Is Versatile Meat

Sausage is a meat which serves the purpose at any time in the day, breakfast, lunch or dinner. With waffles or pancakes, it makes a hearty breakfast which is sure to last the morning through; when prepared in casserole with fresh vegetables, it makes a satisfying and wholesome lunch; and when made into a loaf, it makes a dinner favorite that everyone enjoys.

Suggestions for using sausage in different ways are given by Inez S. Willson, home economist.

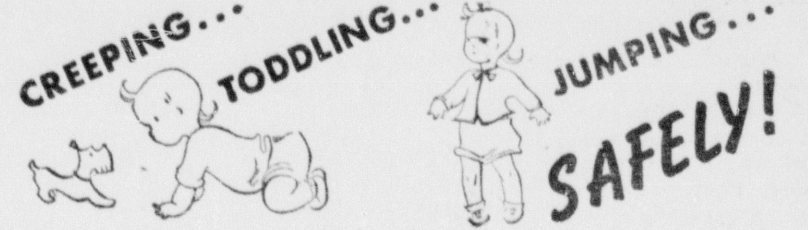

Sausage Loaf Surprise

2 pounds bulk pork sausage
1 egg
4 cups bread crumbs
2 cups mashed potatoes
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper

Mix sausage with egg and crumbs. Line a large loaf pan with sausage, reserving enough to cover the top. Combine mashed potatoes, egg yolks and seasonings. Add milk if mashed potatoes are too stiff to mix well. Fill center of loaf with the mashed potato filling and cover with sausage. Allow one-half inch or more at top of pan for expansion of meat. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one and a half hours.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

I work my cars hard, so I shopped the entire field before I bought my 1940 Packard. In 4 months I've run up 18,017 miles — spent only $1.35 for mechanical upkeep. I get a real kick out of the pick-up and performance of my 1940 Packard because it's so thrifty — as cheap to run as smaller cars I've owned.

pupils, seven of pre-school age, and four adults.

The work of immunization was in charge of Dr. J. Willard Strouse, school physician; and the school nurse, Miss Catucci, aided by Mrs. Joseph Mucklow, president of the P. T. A.

The next meeting is postponed one week, and will be conducted on the 27th of March, at which time a physician representing Bucks County Medical Society will deliver an address on cancer control. The speaker has been secured by Mrs. Minerva Epstein, Bristol. The residents of the area are urged to keep this meeting in mind, as a large attendance is desired.

An invitation was received to attend the Founders' Day program in Bensalem Township high school on February 29th. Those who wish to have transportation provided are asked to notify Mrs. Mucklow.

A resolution of respect in memory of the late Jesse C. Everitt was adopted. Mr. Everitt was a past treasurer of the organization.

The attendance banner was won by Frank Blinder's room. Mrs. Joseph Meder served as secretary pro-tem; and the treasurer's report was presented by Samuel Brecht.

A quantity of food from the surplus supply distributed by government agencies has been received for the school students. This includes 725 pounds of apples, 270 pounds of canned peaches, and 91 pounds of raisins. These will be distributed at recess periods.

Motion pictures on art subjects, which also showed improvements in invention, were shown through courtesy of Miss Margaret Perry, Mr. Glodhill being in charge of the camera.

Refreshments of hot chocolate and home-made cake and cookies were served by Mrs. Walter Jackson and Mrs. C. Wesley Haefer.

Each girl has her particular task to do, the routine being changed weekly. This class likewise has charge of the orders for milk and orange juice for the entire school, and this work advances their knowledge of such affairs.

Occasionally their well-balanced meals are enhanced with pickles and relishes, cranberries, and other goods, which they canned early last fall. So the girls are taught to preserve the surplus. Among the items canned were many quarts of tomatoes. With their work in the homey kitchen they are studying about vitamins, fats, carbohydrates, minerals, and the subject is made more "alive" and interesting than if they were dealing merely with the printed page. Hygienic studies are worked into the making of a healthy, happy home.

The girls are being taught the correct setting of a table, the arrangement of supplies for serving cafeteria style for the school activities, and for this work they have received dozens of plaster of paris dishes from a WPA unit.

A visit to the class-room will find one girl busy at a hooked-rug, another knitting a sweater, a third fashioning an apron, and a fourth crocheting. Each has various types of hand-work in which she is keenly interested, and many have learned to fashion frocks for the smaller sister, or to knit a sweater for brother.

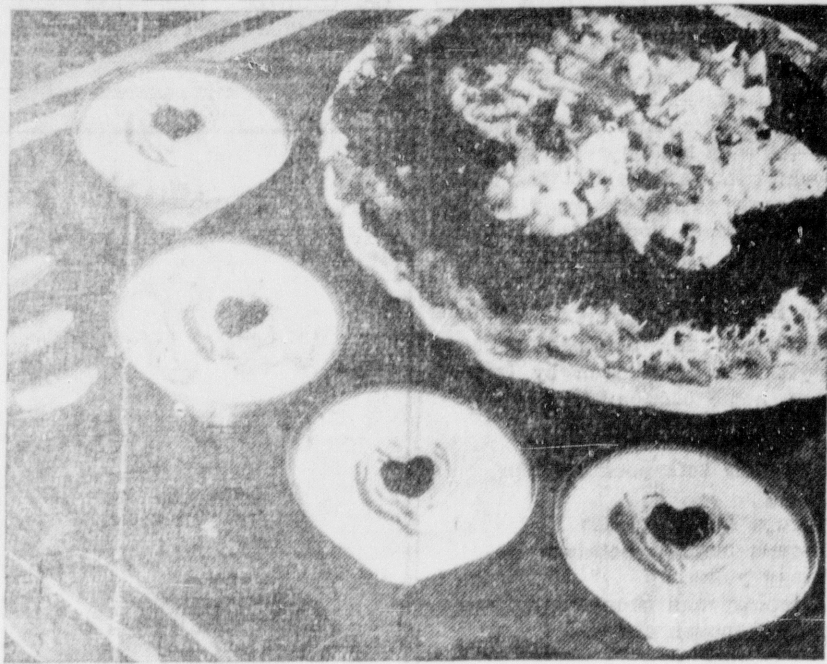

Expression to their talents is also given in art work, and on the blackboard appear during this month, crayon drawings of Washington and Lincoln in colors, exceptionally well done in figures about three feet high.

Spring Color Schemes in Food

A touch of color has the same effect on food as on our attire or in the home. Color brightens things up, makes them more attractive and in food it increases the desire and whets the appetite. Colorful frostings, toppings or decorations are always desirable and at this season of the year we are more willing to "fuss a bit" than during the heat of summer. Red and white are the colors for February and there are dozens of red and white combinations available. You might elect to serve Spanish rice as the main dish; or a specially savory corned beef hash; or a juicy lamb stew, rich with tomatoes, in a rice ring. Sliced tomatoes, day radishes, cranberry jelly and red-skinned apple rings are a few of the red foods obtainable.

One of the most attractive red colorings for dessert use is grenadine syrup, and vanilla rennet-custard with grenadine topping carries out the red and white effect to the last delectable nibble. Best of all its qualifications as a party dessert, perhaps, is the fact that this one can be made in ten minutes, without eggs and without cooking.

Vanilla Rennet-Custard with Grenadine Topping
2 cups milk (not canned or soft curd) or 1 cup milk and 1 cup cream

1 package vanilla rennet powder
1 egg white
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup grenadine syrup
Set out 4 or 5 dessert glasses. Warm milk slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When COMFORTABLY WARM, (120° F.) not hot, remove at once from stove. Stir rennet powder into milk briskly until dissolved — not over one minute. Pour at once, while still liquid, into individual dessert glasses. Do not move until firm — about 10 minutes. Chill in ice box. Just before serving, beat egg white until it holds peaks; add sugar and syrup by tablespoons, beating well after each addition, and continue to beat until mixture is very stiff. Drop a puff of the mixture on each dessert and trickle a little grenadine syrup over the top.

The following menu for a February luncheon party might be served buffet style to simplify it still further:

Loganberry Juice Cocktail with dash of Whipped Cream
Corned Beef Hash
Buttered Julienne Beets
Waldorf Salad in Cranberry Jelly Mold
Hard Rolls
Vanilla Rennet-Custard with Grenadine Topping

Valley Forge Focal Point In Celebration

Washington Memorial Chapel will commemorate the birth of the General who won his greatest victory here in the hard Winter of 1777-78. He gained that triumph, not over the British, but against the twin foes of bitter chill and near-starvation.

Something of Washington's fight to hold together his ragged troops during those six months will be told by speakers. But the bleak, snow-covered countryside, the still existent defense lines, crude trenches and shelters tell the story more eloquently.

Hymns and prayer services were scheduled today in the chapel built, legend says, on the site of a grove where General Washington often retired to pray. Special remembrance will be paid, too, to the graves — marked and unmarked — which denote the resting places of 3,000 Continental soldiers.

Today's celebration will bring into focus an amazing similarity between the fledgling colonies of America and a tiny, beleaguered modern nation — Finland. The parallel between the countries will be emphasized by Dr. John R. Hart, Washington Memorial chaplain, in his anniversary address.

Adopting the motto "Finland—The Valley Forge of Europe," the National Valley Forge Association has been pressing a campaign for funds to aid the nation now menaced by Soviet Russia. Finland's last stand, it was observed, marks a turning point in the defense of Europe's small powers just as Washington's stay at Valley Forge came during an ebb in the Colonists' hopes.

Washington led his 11,000 troops into Valley Forge after suffering two defeats by the British at Brandywine and Germantown. General Howe had taken Philadelphia, 15 miles distant, and commanded a force that might have pursued and slaughtered the retreating Colonials.

The Americans lacked proper clothing and were virtually without military equipment; shoeless sentries wrapped their feet in rags and frost-bite and amputations were common. With food scarce, more than 3,000 men were disabled by illness.

But Washington persevered; he rallied and drilled his men and waited for the Springtime. Springtime came — and with it came financial aid from France and Prussian drillmaster General Von Steuben who helped turn tattered recruits into expert fighting men.

Finally, after General Howe left Philadelphia, the American General broke camp at Valley Forge in June, 1778. Shortly afterward, Washington's men administered a crushing defeat to the British at Monmouth, N. J., in a battle that helped materially to end the war.

Not only on Washington's birthday are services held at Valley Forge, for nearly more than 1,000,000 persons from every State and 15 foreign countries visit the historic site. Many come in Spring to see the pink and white dogwood blooms which have won national attention.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania took over Valley Forge Park in 1893 by legislative act and has maintained it ever since. The State Park now embraces 1,500 acres and includes the restored Isaac Potts House, personal headquarters of General Washington.

O Judge Eternal, we wonder of how many of us Thou wouldst say today, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Make us alert to do Thy bidding, eagerly, joyously, with hearts aglow. GRAND THEATRE

A punch on the nose blasted Huntz Hall, popular Dead End Kid, right into a theatrical career.

"My brother did it. We had a fight," explains the fast-talking young actor who is featured with Billy Halop in "Call A Messenger," which begins today at the Grand Theatre.

Heading the cast in support of the Dead End Kids are the "Little Tough Guys."

That sock on the nose, Hall explains, came during an argument over his brother's bicycle. But it made him look tough enough to land a leading role in the original New York stage play, "Dead End," so Huntz believes now it was a kind deed.

ROSWELL, N. M.—(INS)—This is the story of an unobscured department store employee. He picked up a telephone he believed to be an inter-department phone and said gruffly and quickly: "Give me the tire department." It wasn't long until bedlam reigned as the clamor of bells and the shrieking of sirens heralded the approach of the fire department. He still was trying to get the tire department.

BRYN ATHYN FIVE SWAMPS BENSALEM IN BASKETBALL TILT

Kent Hyatt Racks Up A Total Of Ten Field Goals

FINAL COUNT IS 62 TO 14

Butch Bostock Chalks Up A Half-Dozen Double-Deckers

BRYN ATHYN, Feb. 22.—The tale of the Bensalem Owl's 7th defeat of the current campaign can be related in one word—Hyatt. Kent is his first name. All he did was to rack up 10 field goals with uncanny skill to register 20 points and thereby count for more than enough tallies to beat the Owls single-handed since coach Johnny Slaven's boys could chalk up only 14 counters during the entire ball game. As a result they were smothered under by a powerful offensive attack demonstrated by the home team who won by the one-sided count of 62-14.

Aiding Hyatt to roll up the huge margin of victory was Butch Bostock who chalked up a dozen tallies on a half dozen double deckers. For the losers it was Bob Scarborough and Bob Whyte who led the Owls scoring with 9 points between them. Bryn Athyn scored as many points in the first period as the Owls did throughout the entire contest and in each of the other three quarters the "Aves" tallied more points than their opponents could count in the whole game.

Bensalem officials announced their postponed Lower Bucks County League game of Friday, February 16, with Buckingham, would be played Wednesday, February 28th, 7:30 p. m. Bryn Athyn (62) F.G. F.L.G. COX AND PLUMMER WIN IN ARENA MATCH

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 22.—Joe Cox, Kansas City roughneck, and Lou Plummer, Texas rowdy, were the winners of the double windup wrestling show staged last night at the Arena. Cox won from Cliff Olson, Minnesota Swede, after 18 minutes when Referee Doc Gehman disqualified the latter for foul tactics. Plummer pinned Jack Russell, California youngster, after 20 minutes.

Two altercations outside the ring during the Plummer-Russell match held the attention of the fans more than the wrestling match. In one of the battles, a well-known Trenton fighter tangled with a spectator who proved to be a worthy opponent. In the other mixup, a pint-sized fan, who seemed to be carrying a chip on his shoulder all evening, finally met someone who was able to knock it off. But to get back to the wrestling, Plummer had things much his own way in winning from Russell. The California was unable to match the rough-house tactics of his opponent and was an easy prey for the muscular Texan. Plummer came near starting the third out of the ring tussle of the evening when he threatened a spectator as he was making his way from the ring.

Cox drew one of the better wrestlers in the game in Olson. Cliff gave Joe plenty of abuse while the match lasted, with his persistence in massaging Cox's eyes with a strip of adhesive tape. Cliff manipulated the tape like a sleight of hand artist every time the referee sought the adhesive. Tommy O'Toole, classy Texas Irishman, won the third match of the night by tossing Jim Coffield, Kansas City rowdy, after 22 minutes. Jim Casey and Abe Coleman battled to a draw in the second match, while Tommy Rae won the opener from Jim Park after 18 minutes.

WILL MEET CELTICS

Fifth Ward Out To Eliminate Franklin From The Play-Offs

Manhattan and Profy's will begin their fight to get into the play-offs of the Bristol Basketball League tonight. The former meets the Falls Alumni five and the radiomen have an engagement with the Celtics. In the Bristol Suburban League match, Fifth Ward seeks to eliminate Franklin from the play-offs.

Neither Profy nor Manhattan has an easy match to contend with. The Celtics have been playing top-notch ball lately and almost upset the works by beating Manhattan, a game which they lost in the last minute of play. Previous to that game, the Celts beat the league-leading Grundy club and prevented the woolen workers to clinch the championship of the regular scheduled season.

Profy will be out strong to stop the Celts and attempt to remain in the run for a play-off post. A defeat for the Mill Streeters and a Manhattan triumph will put the former out of the race and give third place to the soap workers.

Manhattan will have its hands full
